MISSOULA--

IRS Tax Practitioner Institutes for 1978 will be in Great Falls Nov. 29 and 30 and Billings Dec. 5 and 6.

The institutes, which are designed for accountants, bookkeepers, farmers, bankers and homemakers who prepare income tax returns for others, are sponsored by the University of Montana Center for Continuing Education and the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS instructors--Dorothy Leach Dean, Norma Perkins, Harry Brown, Rich Thornton and Joe Bateson--will use problems and examples to explain tax regulations and interpretations. Don Torske, senior reviewer in the technical branch of the IRS, will be available to answer questions and provide continuous consultation. Institute topics include: Schedule D-4797, Installment Sales, Tax Basis - Carryover Basis Provisions, Comprehensive Tax Problems, New Jobs Credit, Back to Basics.

An Income Tax Schools Workbook, prepared by a University of Illinois Extension Specialist, is part of the 1978 Tax Practitioner Institutes and will provide a chapter for each agenda topic and other information. The workbook will not be sold as a separate item. It can be obtained only as part of the institute registration.

Openings are available at both the Great Falls and Billings sessions. Registration in advance is required. To enroll or to obtain more information, contact the UM Center for Continuing Education, 107 Main Hall, Missoula, MT 59812, phone (406) 243-2900.
